Final note by the Minister for Public Health and Excise.

Subject - Proposal to grant extension of service to certain officers of the Medical Department.

Sri. B. Jayaram Naidu, Officiating Senior Surgeon, will attain the age of superannuation on 10th September 1949.

Shastravydyapravina Sri. T. Seshachalam was appointed as Honorary Surgeon and Director of Hospitals in Bangalore for a period of one year from 2nd June 1948 and the period of his appointment expires on 1st June 1949.

The question of extending the term of appointment or otherwise of both these officers was considered at the meeting of the Council held on 25th May 1949 when the following resolution was recorded:-

"Council is of opinion that Sri. B. Jayaram Naidu may be given extension of service for one year and continued as Senior Surgeon."

"Council is also of opinion that Sri. Seshachalam may be continued as Director of Bangalore Hospitals for one more year."

In view of the urgency orders were issued regarding Sri. Seshachelam's continuance in service, in anticipation of gracious sanction of His Highness.

I solicit the gracious approval of His Highness to the Council resolution and to the action taken in issuing orders re: Sri. Seshachalam's continuance in service.

Dr. Seshachelam's period of extension of service expires on the 31st May 1949. We have therefore to decide what arrangements are to be made in the circumstances. The question that arises in this connection is whether we would like to continue the post of Director of Hospitals or place all the medical institutions now under his charge under the Senior Surgeon. I personally feel that the pos should continue for some more time as several schemes of development of these institutions have to be taken up shortly. The up-grading of the Mental Hospital proposed by the Government of India, the extension of the Pathological Section of the Victoria Hospital, the question of the employment of Honorary Surgeons, implementation of the shortly expected recommendation of the Medical Council in connection with the recognition of our degrees, and the closing down of the Medical School and augmenting the number of admission into the Medical College, are some of the questions which have to be taken up shortly, for which purpose an officer of experience and administrative ability is badly needed. The Senior Surgeon, combining in himself besides his own duties, the duties of the Chief Medical Officer (Women's Hospitals), Director of Tuberculosis and Inspector General of Prisons and having a wide range of activities, a separate officer to co-ordinate the working of the medical institutions in the City and Civil Area will give him great relief. In the circumstances, the post has to be continued for some more time and the services of Dr. Seshachelam utilised for one more year. Besides, we are paying him an honorarium of Rs.500/- only, and he is not only administering all the major institutions in the City and Civil Station, but also carrying on surgical operations in the Victoria Hospital. When we are about to employ Honorary Surgeons and, most probably, allowing them honoraria for their services, the continuance of Dr. Seshachelam as Honorary Surgeon and Director of Hospitals will not be out of place. This apart, the appointment of any other officer for this post will complicate matters, because other incumbents being more or less of the same status and pay, the necessary co-operation for an efficient administration will not be forthcoming and some of the institutions may have to become independent. Dr. Seshachelam has been working as Principal

Dr. Seshachelam has been working as Principal of the Medical School also. His retirement will raise the question of fresh appointment for the School. This being the last year of the life of the School, his continuance as such will avoid the necessity of creating a fresh post. Lastly, Dr. Seshachelam being the senior-most person and adjustable habits, all the doctors would like to work under him. For these reasons, I suggest that his term may be extended by one more year.
